Life Lessons give insight into me as a person—

- GRACE. By the grace of God, a young girl from humble beginnings can grow up to make a difference in creative and insightful ways.
- FAMILY. A grandson who weighs in at one pound changes you. Family matters.
- CANCER. Even cancer held a gift for me in its hands. Health and the amazing love of family and friends are not to be taken for granted.
- LOVE. Jesus has proven His love for me. My husband loves me but I can't expect him to prove it to me every day. Embracing truth and surrendering this expectation frees him and me.
- PRAYER. The prayers of an ordinary person are powerful and effective. I want to waste less time worrying and invest more time praying.
- DRAINERS. Two things that drain people the most are unresolved conflict and operating outside of your strengths/temperament/gifting. I am no exception.
- ENCOURAGEMENT. Without love and encouragement, I tend to shrink back. With them, all things are possible.
- FULLY PRESENT. Since I can only live one place at a time, I choose to be fully alive in the present. Forgiving the past and surrendering the future aren't easy but are worth doing.
- POWERFUL GOALS. When I focus on taking personal responsibility for what's within my ability and right to control, I am not a victim. This is a powerful goal with deep impact on my life.
- VISION and PURPOSE. My vision is for you to experience being fully alive as you live out your God-given design. My purpose is to facilitate the process for those who invite me into it.
- RENEWING MY MIND. Feelings follow thoughts. When my emotions run amok, I need to see what's going on "upstream" and renew my mind . . . pretty much every day.
- ENJOY. I need to make time to do the simple things I enjoy in life...lobster rolls, kayaking, a great game of boggle or tennis with friends. Without this balance, I'm not fully me.
